About Cookies

A "cookie" is a small data file transferred by a Web site to a computer's hard drive. We send cookies when you visit our site, make purchases, or respond to online surveys or polls. Accepting the cookies used on our site does not give us access to your personal information. The aggregate information collected enables us to analyze traffic patterns on our site, and maintain your user session on our e-commerce and restricted-access Web sites such as the Professional Education Center. Specifically, cookies enable you to enter your username and password only once on pages where a login is required.

Most browsers automatically accept cookies, but you can usually refuse cookies, or selectively accept certain cookies, by adjusting the preferences in your browser. If cookies are turned off though, there may be some features of our site that will not be available and some Web pages may not display properly.
